Get Ready for Summer Camp – It Will Never Be the Same!
Nate Rocks the Boat at Oxford Valley Barnes & Noble on June 2

Oxford Valley, PA -- No wimpy kids here!

Move over Greg from Diary of a Wimpy Kid ... There's a new cool kid's book series that's getting some great buzz in the Delaware Valley and beyond -- Nate Rocks.

Nate Rocks the World and Nate Rocks the Boat ($7.99 paperback, also available for Kindle and other digital readers) are coming to The Court at Oxford Valley, PA, Barnes & Noble on Saturday, June 2. They feature our "hero," 10-year-old Nathan Rockledge – aka "Nate Rocks," who loves sports and drawing cartoons.

The second book in the 3-book series by Montgomery County, PA-based author Karen Pokras Toz, Nate Rocks the Boat, came out in May 2012, and is about Nate's adventures at summer camp. The series shares vivid stories of the active 4th grader's adventures – some real and some imagined -- with his best friend, Tommy, his older sister, Abby (a pain to say the least), a dad stuck in the past, and a mom whose best "home-cooked" meal is takeout food.

Nate Rocks is perfect for the sometimes reluctant readers -- the elementary school set (8 to 11 year olds) beginning to enjoy reading chapter books.

Toz will be reading sections from the Nate Rocks series and signing books on Saturday, May 26, from Noon-3pm at The Court at Oxford Valley, PA, location (210 Commerce Blvd. Fairless Hills, PA 19030). Both books will be available for signing/sale.

Nate Rocks the World won two runner-up awards in February 2012 -- for best cover and best 1st chapter in the 2012 UpAuthors.com Writer's Contest. It's also garnered many rave reviews, including these recent 5-star ratings for Readers Favorite:

"Nate Rocks The World brings us a tale that will please girls, boys and adults ... This book is right up there with 'Middle School: Worst Years of My Life' and 'Diary of a Wimpy Kid.' I very much enjoyed both books, but think both authors better keep an eye on Ms. Toz; she is their competition ... I just ordered copies for my grandsons. Please Ms. Toz, more Nate!" -- Anne B.

"Pokras Toz truly writes a masterpiece with Nate Rocks. The cover is captivating and catches the interest of readers immediately. The book is perfect for any grade school child, boys or girls, because they can relate to the frustrations of life at that age. Society today seems to push children to be competitive, to be in sports, to excel at everything, when in fact, children just want to be children. They want to play superheroes, daydream and have an imagination. This book encourages the magic that's missing from our children's lives and inspires children to follow their dreams." -- Rita V
